“Thus spake he signifying by what death he should glorify God”

I would gladly give my life just to see this country return to the God who founded this great nation. However, there is a death that is more rewarding, more beneficial, more painful, than going to jail, being shot or any other type of “dying for our country” — there is no glory in it. There is no reward for self in it. There is no self glory in it. There is only pain and suffering and the joy of doing God’s will and trusting that His love for our country and its people is more than one could ever imagine and He will do all that has to be done to rid our nation of all that cannot enter into His kingdom. We will see Him shake our nation until nothing can be shaken.

However, by now we all know that a nation is not just mountains and streams, but people, and our nation being a beautiful potpourri of nationalities will indeed become that melting pot as His fiery presence melts all of our wicked hearts to conform to His. For His glory shall cover this nation starting right here in Costa Mesa and reaching to the uttermost parts of the earth.

What does this death that glorifies God entail?? Let me give you a thumbnail sketch.

First, you will not get your own way in anything for His will will be done and you will either submit your will or perish.

Second, you will begin to prefer others’ well being more important than your own. Our snobbish little arrogant attitudes will have to give way to a grateful heart — I mean, grateful for the air we have to breathe.

You will be a servant of all and your bossy gestapo boots will be replaced with feet shod with the gospel of peace. And your bossy tongue which starts on fire the pits of hell will have to be replaced with a tongue that carries with it healing to the recipient.

Each individual will be under his own fig tree so to speak, doing what God has intended for him to do, minding his business, extending a hand to those less fortunate.

In other words, your family unit as you know it is history and a new family is being born. New relationships, new governments, a new nation under God.

Then we can all sing “silent night, holy night”, and it will describe the glory brought forth as we all die the death that glorifies God. Then we all can exclaim, “This is the day that the Lord has made, let us rejoice and be glad in it.”
